

Quiz

In the following quiz, you will be tested on concepts you learned in this chapter.

1

What are the two main components required to create a Docker image?

2

Which instruction does a Dockerfile begin with?

3

What is the purpose of a the FROM instruction in a Dockerfile?

4

Naming an image is a requirement for creating it.

5

Which is the correct command to be used when creating an image from a Dockerfile?

6

Which instruction can be used to insert additional files inside a Dockerfile?

7

What does it mean for a base image to have a latest tag in its name?

8

The COPY instruction has two parameters. What are they?

9

Which switch allows you to stop a container using ctrl-c from the command line?

10

What does the following command do?

What does the following command do?

```
docker image ls
```

11

Which instruction is used to define a default value for an environment variable in a Dockerfile?

12

Which instruction lets you store data in a persistent file system?

Check Answers

Now that we know how to create our own images, in the next chapter we will learn how to publish them.