

Practical Color Tools

I use these CSS tools daily! They are efficient and prove helpful everytime. After using these, you'll have no more excuses. No more, "I am not a design person", or "I just dont know how colors mix" 😊

Just before we get unto the practical sections, I wanted to share with you some of my favorite color tools I use everyday!

It can be a pain to blend colors well, and more so who goes about memorizing color hex values?

1. MaterialUI.co

This is one of my favorite tools. It's amazing. You get a lot of options, shades of colors. Found the color you want, you just click to copy the css color value

Red	Pink	Purple	Deep ...	Indigo	Blue	Light ...	Cyan	Teal	Green	Light ...	Lime	Yellow	Amber	Orange	Deep ...	Brown	Grey	Blue ...

That's not all yet.

You also get the option of choosing what color value type you want. Hex or RGB or RGBA

When you find the color you want, just click on the color thumbnail and the color value will be copied to your clipboard.

2. Colors.co

Colors is an online color palette generator. Let me explain.

Sometimes what you need isn't what shade of color to use. Sometimes what you need is a color palette that just works.

A palette refers to a collection of colors chosen to be used on a particular design.

If you don't want to think too hard about blending colors, then this is an invaluable tool!

3. Colorhunt.co colorhunt is an amazing place to find color palettes that just work! It is well curated. Shows new, hot, popular and even random palettes.

Give it a try!

These are tools I use almost everyday. At least one of them gets used. I hope they prove helpful to you as they have been to me.
