Sending Data: The Basics

You know now how to retrieve some data from web servers or APIs. This chapter will teach you how to send data to them.

Sending data to a server is usually done via an HTTP POST method. In that case, the request body contains the data to be sent.

The data format depends on what the server expects. It can either be:

- Key/value pairs like when a form is directly submitted.
- JSON for more structured data.